The Recordings of SIDNEY BECHET

Mal Collins

June 2011
This is not a discography in the most accepted sense of that word: it does not itemise every commercial release of the recordings of Sidney Bechet; in fact it does not include much release information at all.

The Recordings here are – at the time of writing, June 2011 - almost all free of recording copyright in many territories: 50 years from the first publication date, recordings may be freely - and legally - used, without paying royalties to the artist (not the case in the USA, and the situation is changing in Europe). This means that it is difficult - not to say impossible - to keep track of the many uses of his work: not only of his classic performances which have been free of this copyright for some time, but also now of his many French recordings, which count for more than 50% of his output.

So to detail the original release information is of less and less interest (and this has already been done. None of the original shellac or vinyl releases is available, except as a collector's item; many CD releases are also no longer available; we are into an era driven by the most popular end of the music market: the digital/download age. So to itemise ALL commercial releases is a thankless task which serves less & less benefit with every year that passes.

What this document does do is: to collect together all the known recordings of Sidney Bechet; to clear up a number of anomalies and uncertainties (others will always remain); to identify all the occasions on which he plays soprano sax and/or clarinet; and to fully index all sessions by title and performer. All the information on items commercially released is drawn from the recordings in my own personal collection, although there are a number of recordings which have been ‘released privately’.

The proliferation of releases took many forms: 78 rpm discs (shellac, then vinyl) gave way to vinyl LP's, both 10” (25cm) and 12” (30cm), and nearly every item below was re-issued in the latter format. Some 1950's items were originally issued on 45 rpm (7”/18cm) discs and only subsequently on LP or CD. By the 1950's (after Bechet's last recordings), the 78 rpm disc had been discontinued, and by the 1960's the musicassette had arrived, although this was exploited almost entirely as a parallel carrier to the LP (i.e. recordings were rarely issued or packaged only on cassette, which remained an alternative to the [main] LP release). The LP remained the primary carrier until into the 1980's, when it was overtaken by the Compact Disc; and for 'classic' jazz recordings, the date was even later. In the 1990's the Digital Compact Cassette and the Mini-Disc arrived (although very few - if any - Bechet titles were ever issued on either of those two formats), and departed as commercial configurations. A true discography should take account of all these formats, however very few discographies have ever contain details of musicassettes - notwithstanding which, there is one title in this discography which I think may only have been commercially released on a musicassette! And now you can download a fair number of Bechet recordings in a digital audio format, and there are a few titles which are only available as downloads. The same applies to some of the very few video performances of Bechet known to exist: some of these are available only as downloads or as custom DVD's.

What follows is a catalogue of Sidney Bechet's known recordings, without release details for the most part. It is... not therefore a discography in the sense accepted by many jazz collectors. Those recordings which have never been released are marked "+". Certain release details are however included where they actually determine what exists and what does not.

The first discography of Sidney Bechet was written by his friend John D. Reid in "Jazz Information" Volume 2, no. 9 (November 1940). Thereafter the mantle of Bechet discographer passed to David Mylne who produced a first discography in 1948. For the publication of "Treat it Gentle" (1960), David prepared a new discography containing all known recordings up to the date of publication; since this was after Bechet's death, the vast majority of his Vogue recordings (both studio sessions and many of the concert recordings we know to exist) were included, up to his last studio session in 1958 (most of these were actually released during Bechet's lifetime). This discography was not updated by the publishers for new editions of the autobiography (and indeed a further US printing in 2002 still contained the original Mylne 1960 discography!!).

A full discography by Hans J. Mauerer appeared as a separate publication in 1969. This was - and remained for some time - an excellent guide. Over the years following Mauerer, many 'unreleased' or dubious items have been cleared up, and of course a number of new (mostly 'live') items have surfaced.

When "Treat it Gentle" was belatedly published in French in 1977 (as "La Musique, C'est Ma Vie"), it contained a new discography by Alain Tercinet. For the publication of his book on Bechet (see references below), Fabrice Zammarchi produced a new discography, although no matrix numbers were included. All of these are now superseded by the work of Guy Demole, whose work on Bechet's "musical activity" contains both a catalogue of Guy Demole's personal Bechet collection (including many performances not commercially released, as well as details of Bechet's public performances. My discography hereby admits a great debt to Guy Demole, especially in respect of details of unreleased material. Bechet is of course also included in the general and amazing discographies of ALL jazz, by Messrs. Rust, Raben, Bruyninckx, Lord et al

Gradually, some hitherto unreleased items appeared on CD in the chronological series from the French "Média7" (later "Masters of Jazz" label), but – like many projects, including the Vogue “Integrale” 3LP box sets (COF-21 etc) and the French Classics (CD) series – this series was never completed due to financial problems for those companies.

But unissued recordings continue to surface. For example, the "Einbrecher" soundtrack from 1930, two versions of "I got Rhythm" with Jabbo Smith, extracts from the film: "Moon Over Harlem"; A "Panama" (Olympia concert 12/03/52), and the Swiss concert with Braslavsky all appeared for the first time in the age of the Compact Disc (1992 or thereafter). One or two audiovisual items have appeared in recent years, and the odd alternate take has also surfaced recently (especially from the Mosaic label), adding spice to our appreciation of Bechet, and confusion even to those among us who try to keep chapter & verse on his output.

So this document may well be out of date when you read it!!!

Discographical Milestones

For many years, well into the era of the LP, only a selection of Bechet's 1920's recordings were generally available in Europe on the Fontana & CBS labels; in retrospect, these were the best of his 1920's output, but often titles with Buster Bailey (the first Bechet copyist) replacing Bechet were included. It was not until Fat Cat Jazz filled out the gaps in the 1980's that all his 1920's sides became available for the first time since their original release. The FCJ albums were then pre-empted by 'chronological' series on CD on a variety of labels in the late 1980's and 1990's. Typically therefore, one was then able to buy all the Bechet titles from the 1920's through now into the mid-1940's on CD. Best in this category were the "Complete" CD editions on the French label "Média7" (later "Masters of Jazz" or "Musisoft"), which included hitherto unreleased performances. That series came to an abrupt end without releasing some of the John Reid archive recordings, which it had been doing up until then.

---------------
The 'Victor' recordings ("New Orleans Feetwarmers") appeared in a variety of albums from various RCA (now Sony/BMG) companies in Europe, USA and Japan. These were definitively researched (including alternate takes, many issued for the first time) and chronologically compiled by RCA France in their "Jazz Tribune" series, originally issued as double LP's (PM42409, 43282 & 45728), later as CD's (ND 89760, ND 89759 & 74321155192) and as a CD Box (003562903172). Research by the originating company does not necessarily mean that they have found everything, but these French re-issues are the source for the entries below on the relevant recordings. With the exception of V-Disc material, I have considered their research to be definitive.

The Blue Note recordings of Bechet were issued on LP & CD by Mosaic in the 1980's, with extensive research and sensible/erudite sleeve notes; not only did Mosaic collate together all the known Blue Note recordings which Bechet made over a period of nearly 15 years, they also unearthed a number of alternate takes at the same time which had never previously been released anywhere (re-packaging of Blue Note recordings over the years was not common). One alternate take has now surfaced which was not in the Mosaic collection, but otherwise I have again considered their research to be definitive.

In 2006 Mosaic also compiled a 3-CD set of 'all' (in fact they missed at least one track) the known recordings which were at that time under the control of Sony Music (the album carries a P-notice for Sony/BMG 2006) – this included recordings for OKeh, Vocalion and Columbia, amongst other labels.

The 'King Jazz' recordings with Mezzrow comprise a number of sessions over a 3-year period, including many alternate takes. A good number of alternates were actually issued on 78 rpm by King Jazz or their licensees, and the Storyville company of Denmark also issued all known takes on a variety of configurations (LP, EP, 7" single even!) during the 1960's. The Storyville version was not chronological, but it did have an added bonus in the inclusion of some spoken passages by Mezzrow, and his personal blessing. Storyville re-released all the product again on vinyl in the 1980's in double albums, again without regard for chronological sequence. Finally they released all the product on CD in the same (dis)order as the double LP's, again with Mezzrow talking. In fact the only chronological issues were made on LP by King Jazz (Italy) during the 1960's (KJ102-1007 duly noted in Mauerer), subsequently re-released in the 1990's on CD (KJ101 FS - KJ104 FS). These should be considered to be the best available collection of the King Jazz sides (there are 2 or 3 mistakes in the Storyville releases)

By the 1960's we thought we had heard all the best of Bechet. Rumours and scant details were in circulation regarding a series of recordings Bechet had made during a 1945 residency at the Savoy Cafe in Boston, but that was all. During the 1980's, a series of 12 LP's was lovingly put together by Fat Cat Jazz, issuing commercially for the first time all the recordings from that short residency. Hardly any recordings seem to have been lost (only one broadcast is not accounted for at all, others have only occasional parts missing). This series of releases was not only a tribute to the dedication and abilities of the Fat Cat team, it is also a quite unique document of a (major jazz) artist's regular broadcast gigs over a short period of time (given extra spice by Bechet's use - for a variety of reasons - of three different trumpeters during the residency). The Boston recordings were released on USA CD's on the Jazz Crusade label in the late 1990's, although these do not seem to contain all the available material as released on the Fat Cat LP's.

Vogue Records made many recordings of Sidney Bechet both in the studio and at concerts during the period of his recording contract with them in the 1950's. Over the years since Bechet's death, they released many of the most popular or interesting sides in a wide variety of configurations and packages, including at one point a 10" 16 r.p.m. disc! One of the reasons for the catalogue which follows not to be a discography (in the accepted sense of the word) is that keeping track of these (re-)releases has proved impossible. In the early 1980's, Vogue began a 'complete edition' on LP - to include all the recordings made by Bechet during the period of his contract. It is likely that Vogue had an exclusive contract with Bechet for recordings made in France (although some 'live' or location recordings made in Switzerland were also released by them); USA recordings (e.g. for Blue Note) were therefore not included. This complete edition started well (although a few of the 1949 recordings with Braslavsky at the Paris Jazz Festival and in Geneva - which were known to exist - were not included), but was never completed, probably for commercial reasons. COF-21 to COF-27 inclusive were all released. Subsequently Vogue issued a CD box comprising all Bechet's studio recordings (*), but - in general - the 'master takes' only. Other material issued by Vogue came from the collection of the late Charles Delaunay, including rare examples of Bechet backed by a full big band. Nevertheless, it is a difficult and thankless task to check every Vogue release to verify whether an unissued take or concert performance has been used.
(* = The box number is 74321165972, and the individual CD numbers (although I do not think the individual elements have been officially released) are 1169512/522/532/552/572/582/592/602)

Few documented studio recordings remain unissued, and probably no longer exist. These include items such as a couple of possibly apocryphal sides with an early Ellington band, "Pleasure Mad" (a Bechet composition) with Maureen Englin, the Bessie Smith test recording (if only!). 1 Noble Sissle, 1 Haitian Orchestra, alternates of the Louis Armstrong 1940 session. It must surely be questionable whether some of these truly exist or whether - for example in the case of the 1940 Armstrong session for American Decca - 'alternate takes' are really different performances or dubbed versions of other (known) takes. Only one purported commercial release (Jazz Society AA508) has never been traced, and may have been a proposed release (possibly of known material) which never made it to the record store.

Eventually, in the 1990's, Vogue Records was bought by BMG (who had previously bought RCA/Victor), thus uniting the 'New Orleans Feetwarmers' sides from as early as 1932 with the vast quantity of material recorded by Bechet for Vogue in the 1950's. The rights to the 1920's OKeh catalogue passed to Columbia, which eventually became part of Sony Music. In 2007, Sony and BMG merged their interests, so that one entity effectively now owns the rights (however limited now, so many years after their original release) to much of the very best of Bechet.

Bechet did not make as many recordings in total through his life as his undoubted ability suggests. Below is a count of the studio recordings he made for each year from 1923, excluding alternate takes:

London, c.Jan/Feb 1921

*High Society
*Tiger Rag
*6 other titles

No trumpet on Bechet's first ever recording (not the last time either!). These recordings (made for English Columbia) were never issued, since - per "Treat it Gentle" - there was some technical mishap. R. gives a date of Jan/Feb 1920, and only the two named titles, but all the other discographers go for the later date and more unissued material. By the time of the later date, the group was operating under the name of 'Mitchell's Jazz Kings', and Bechet could well have played soprano as well (he began sometime during 1920). However, given the difficulties of recordings him on soprano even a few years later in New York, I opt for clarinet only here. M. & Z. also give 3 tracks on a session from February 1920 under the name of the Savoy Dance Orchestra (personnel probably similar to the above); this is based on research by Brian Rust published in the magazine Storyville (Issue 21); however, in later editions of his "Jazz Records 1897-1942", Rust identifies the SDO as a white unit, names only 2 tracks and a catalogue number, so these may now be discounted from a Bechet discography. Similarly, The Mitchell's Jazz Kings session from September 1922 in Paris (for French Pathé) can now be rejected: audible evidence suggests no Bechet, and that - without him - the MJK connection with jazz was tenuous indeed.

(230000) GREENLEE & DRAYTON
Eddie Greenlee and Thaddeus Drayton (vcl duet) accompanied by Johnny Dunn (cnt), Sidney Bechet (sop/clt), Clarence Williams (pno).

*Original Charleston Strut

Originally recorded for OKeh and not released. L. thinks this recording may be from late rather than early in the year.
(230100) BESSIE SMITH
Bessie Smith (vcl), accompanied by Bubber Miley (cnt), Charlie Irvis (tbn), Sidney Bechet (sop/clt), Clarence Williams (pno), Buddy Christian (bjo).

New York, c. January 1923

*I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate

Bessie Smith's test record for either Columbia (per Williams) or OKeh (per Bechet). Jazz History certainly regrets its disappearance!

(230730) CLARENCE WILLIAMS' BLUE FIVE
Thomas Morris (cnt), John Mayfield (tbn), Sidney Bechet (sop), Clarence Williams (pno), Buddy Christian (bjo).

New York, July 30 1923

S-71-706-B  Wild Cat Blues
S-71-707-B  Kansas City Man Blues

Originally recorded for OKeh. First extant recordings of Sidney Bechet. The matrix numbers used are from L., and not the 'condensed' versions used previously. The date is from L. and R., and not from other discographers, who give 30 June. Note the spelling of the trombonist's name, as confirmed by L.

S-71-747-B  Oh! Daddy Blues
S-71-748-B  I've Got the Yes! We Have No Bananas Blues

Originally recorded for OKeh. L. & R. give "Banana", although Eva Taylor clearly sings the plural version.

(230827) CLARENCE WILLIAMS’ BLUE FIVE
Thomas Morris (cnt), John Mayfield (tbn), Sidney Bechet (clt), Clarence Williams (pno), Buddy Christian (bjo). New York, c. August 27 1923

S-71-797-A  Achin' Hearted Blues

Originally recorded for OKeh. Not everyone is convinced that this is Bechet - L. not, and Z. discounts it in his discography, but later re-instates it on the Compact Disc Média 7 release produced by him. There is no doubt in my mind however: no other clarinettist of the period could have performed in this way.

(230929) EVA TAYLOR ACCOMPANIED BY CLARENCE WILLIAMS’ TRIO
Eva Taylor (vcl), accompanied by Sidney Bechet (sop), Clarence Williams (pno), Buddy Christian (bjo).

S-71-910-A  Irresistible Blues
S-71-910-C  Irresistible Blues
S-71-911-B  Jazzin' Babies Blues

Originally recorded for OKeh. Both takes of 71910 are said to have been used on copies of the first release: OK 8129, although two different versions have never been appeared on LP or CD. Per My., -C was at best a dub of -A. And D. (in his 1998 edition) drops the existence of -C completely. Moreover, Mosaic – who research as well as any other record company, ever – include only the known performance on their admirable CD re-issue box: Mosaic Select MS-022, which gathers together all the OKeh material available, although they call this take –C! .

New York, c November 14 1923

S-72-059-B  House Rent Blues (The Stomp)
S-72-060-B  Mean Blues

Originally recorded for OKeh. Some doubts linger about whether the trombonist is Irvis or Mayfield. L. says Bechet on soprano & clarinet here, but it’s only soprano.

(note: the Virginia Liston session of 7 January 1924 ["I Don't Love Nobody"/"Tain't A Doggone Thing But The Blues"] is listed by M.[B16], T. and Z. as possible Bechet. However, R., L. & My. do not agree, and Z., having included it in his discography, later discounts it in the Compact Disc Média 7 release produced by him. I think it's not Bechet)

(240110) VIRGINIA LISTON
Virginia Liston (vcl) accompanied by unknown guitar.

New York, c January 10 1924

72265-A,-B  Jail House Blues

Originally recorded for OKeh; the original release on OK 8122 gives: "Guitar accomp. by Sidney Bechet". This is described by Bechet in "Treat it Gentle": he had asked Clarence Williams to put his name on the record label (it was already on a Rosetta Crawford release - see above), and Williams duly complied, but selected titles not containing Bechet (see also below re: another Virginia Liston session)! Pops Foster says that Bechet “could pick some guitar”. L. suggests Sylvester Weaver, but he was a better guitarist than the one playing here. I only continue to include it here because there is no positive proof that it is not Bechet.

(240500) MAUREEN ENGLIN

New York, May 1924

105347  Foolin' Me
*Pleasure Mad

Originally recorded for Pathé Actuelle or Perfect. Details of the unreleased track come originally from M., but no matrix number has been traced; it is of course a Bechet composition (aka "Viper Mad"), and was recorded by Ethel Waters that same year.

(240700) DUKE ELLINGTON AND THE WASHINGTONIANS
Bubber Miley (cnt), Charlie Irvis (tbn), Sidney Bechet (sop/clt), Otto Hardwick (alt), Duke Ellington (pno), Fred Guy (bjo), Sonny Greer (dms).

*Twelfth Street Rag
*Tiger Rag

I have been unable to trace the source of this information; it may be based on unsubstantiated claims by Bechet that he recorded with Ellington, which have been given greater credence than they are worth. The received wisdom here is that the sides were originally recorded for Brunswick. It is however sure that Bechet played with the Washingtonians during the summer of 1924 (which appears a more likely date than 'late 1924' [per M.]), and he is certainly not on any other Ellington band sides from later in the year. If the recordings were indeed made, time may well have deprived us of the sound of Miley & Bechet doing battle together, as recounted by Duke.

New York, October 17 1924

S-72-915-B Early In The Morning -2
S-72-916-B You've Got The Right Key, But The Wrong Keyhole -1,-2

Originally recorded for OKeh. Bechet's first Clarence Williams dates for 11 months represent also the first recorded collaborations between Bechet & Armstrong.

(note: Bechet is listed on the label of OK 8196 [Virginia Liston: "Night Latch Key Blues"/"Any Day The Sun Don't Shine"], but does not play on it. Probably a similar example to 240110 above)
(note: The Clarence Williams session of November 6 1924 /"Of All The Wrongs You've Done To Me"/"Everybody Loves My Baby" features the first Bechet copyist: Buster Bailey on soprano sax. These titles have been included in album releases under Bechet’s name in the past)

(note: The Margaret Johnson session of November 25 1924 listed by M. [B20] and T. does not contain Bechet; in fact there is no reed at all!)

(241128) SIPPIE WALLACE ACCOMPANIED BY CLARENCE WILLIAMS' BLUE FIVE

73007-B Baby, I Can't Use You No More
73008-B Trouble Everywhere I Roam

Originally recorded for Okeh, the session features in all the discographies, and L. is quite certain it's him. However, Z., having included it in his discography, later discounts it in the Compact Disc Média 7 release produced by him. It's also rejected by D. (who suggests Buster Bailey). Whoever it is, he is struggling against a rogue soprano sax with a mind of its own. The intonation is not Bechet, who had by now mastered the difficulties of the soprano better than these performances suggest; however, the tone is more like him. Either it is someone imitating Bechet (and Buster Bailey would be a possibility here) or it's Bechet in bad form or on a poor quality instrument. I've decided therefore to leave this entry in, even though it is rejected by other discographers, since it's not possible to say categorically that it’s not him.

S-73-026-B Mandy, Make Up Your Mind (ET vcl) -1, -2
S-73-027-B I'm A Little Blackbird Looking For A Bluebird (ET vcl) -1

Originally recorded for OKe. The only known sarrusophone outing in jazz. It is likely that Bechet had encountered this instrument while with the Southern Syncopated Orchestra in London, and unlikely that he saw it for the first time in a pawn shop on the way to the studio for this session (as he sometimes claimed). The sarrusophone was not unlike the saxophone except that it had a double reed (in fact Adolph Sax had taken the makers of the sarrusophone to court because he felt the similarities infringed his saxophone patents, but he lost the case), and I believe also that it had the same – or very similar – fingering.

(241222A) JOSEPHINE BEATTY WITH THE RED ONION JAZZ BABIES

9248A Cake Walking Babies (From Home)

Originally recorded for Gennett. These recordings retain the sound of the Williams sessions; in fact the only difference is Lil Armstrong for Williams.

S-73-081-A Who'll Chop Your Suey (When I'm Gone)
S-73-082-B Done Made A Fool Out Of Me

Originally recorded for OKeh. "Suey" is one one of only two Bechet compositions recorded by any Williams outfit (the other is "Ghost of the Blues", recorded May 16 1924 by Eva Taylor with a Williams group including Lorenzo Tio on clarinet), although the Clarence Williams Music Publishing Company owned other titles composed by Bechet, who held the position of 'Professional Manager' with the company.

(250108B) EVA TAYLOR ACCOMPANIED BY CLARENCE WILLIAMS' BLUE FIVE
Eva Taylor (vcl), accompanied by Louis Armstrong (cnt), Charlie Irvis (tbn), Sidney Bechet (sop), Clarence Williams (pno), Buddy Christian (bjo).
New York, January 8 1925
Originally recorded for OKeh. These two sessions were recorded either on the same or subsequent days; The cornet player definitely changes between the sessions, although it is less clear who the trombonist is.

(250304) EVA TAYLOR ACCOMPANIED BY CLARENCE WILLIAMS’ BLUE FIVE
Eva Taylor (vcl), accompanied by Louis Armstrong (cnt), Charlie Irvis (tbn), Sidney Bechet (sop-1), Buster Bailey (sop/clt-2), Don Redman (alt-3), Clarence Williams (pno), Buddy Christian (bjo).

New York, March 4 1925

S-73-204-A Cast Away -2, -3
S-73-205-A Papa De-Da-Da -1, -2

Originally recorded for OKeh. The identity of the trombone player is again open to conjecture. Some discographers list all three reedmen, although Z., having included Bechet in his discography, later discounts him entirely in the Compact Disc Média 7 release produced by him. D. also rejects him entirely. After repeated listening to CD releases, I have opted for the above split.

(250717) THE GET HAPPY BAND

140773-2 Junk Bucket Blues
140774-1 Harlem's Araby

Originally recorded for Columbia. The personnel listed is a compilation of various discographers' conjectures.

(note: this is Bechet's last recording session before he began further European travels. The Williams/Eva Taylor session of October 8 1925 ['Coal Cart Blues'/'Santa Claus Blues'], which was always thought to contain Bechet, must now be disregarded. This is all the more strange since Armstrong & Bechet were thought to have 're-created' "Coal Cart Blues" for the New Orleans Album on American Decca in 1940 [see 400527]. Nevertheless, there can be no doubt that [as pointed out by John Chilton] Bechet left the USA with the company of the "Revue Nègre" on board the liner 'Berengaria' on 16 September, and was in Paris when the October session took place)

(note: for details of Bechet's travels in the period following his appearance in the Revue Nègre until his release from prison and his departure from France in December 1929 - during which he apparently made no recordings at all - see D., and articles by Gérard Conte in French quarterlies: "Les Cahiers du Jazz" [P.U.F.], which draw on French police files of the period regarding Bechet)

Berlin June-September 1930

Ich Lass Mir Meinen Körper Schwarz Bepinseln -1, -2
Kind, Dein Mund Ist Musik -1

Originally recorded for the Franco-German Film: "Einbrecher" ("Flagrant Délit", or "Burglar"), and released in audio format for the first time on (French) Média 7 CD MJCD 14. The film was once thought lost, but was rediscovered, was released on video (VHS PAL format: BMG (UFA) 4197) in 1995, and later also in DVD. Details of personnel from Storyville magazine (see below), the Média 7 release, H. & D. If the banjoist is indeed Mike Mckendrick (as identified by Delvi - see H.), this would be strange, since he and Bechet had been involved in a shooting incident in Paris less than 2 years previously, and both spent a considerable time in prison as a result.

The recordings are very poor, and are mostly 'background music' to the actors in the film. Bechet does not play on two other titles from the film: "Lass Mich Einmal Deine Carmen Sein" and "Eine Liebelei, So Nebenblei". See "Storyville" magazine issue 72 re: this film, and Bechet's activity in Germany at the time; also Doctor Jazz Magazine (Dutch) number 150 (September 1995) for an article by Ate van Delde on Lex van Spall, who played music for several UFA films of the time.

And just to complete the story: it is also quite possible that the musicians as seen on the film are not all the same as those who perform on the soundtrack!

E-36121-AB In A Café On The Road To Calais (NS vcl) -1, -2
E-36122-A Loveless Love -1, -2, -3

Originally recorded for Brunswick. All discographers agree on the date, except M. (24 January). The band was named The Georgia Syncopators on the Melotone label and the Missouri Jazz Band on the Supertone label. 36121 remained unreleased until the 1980's when it was released on LP by Fat Cat Jazz. M. and R. go for Pinckney, the French for Plackney. Bechet played a bass (even perhaps a contrabass?) sax in his early days with Sissle, who had arrangements in the 'book' which required it, but the sound here lacks the depth that a bass sax would bring; it is of course debatable whether Bechet could read the saxophone part as scored for the ensemble passages anyway. A low-pitched saxophone can only be heard in the ensemble. Drummer Freddie Moore, in an interview (?from the Tulane archives? used in the BBC radio programme "Le Silver Bell" [1984], stated that Bechet played baritone with Sissle. So on these 2 counts, I'll go for Bechet on baritone. There is little soprano to be heard except soloing, since Bechet's soprano intonation does not really fit ensemble work with other saxes.

E-36645      Wha'd Ya Do To Me (NS vcl) -2
E-36646      Roll On, Mississippi, Roll On (NS vcl) -1, -2

Originally recorded for Brunswick. However, this session and the previous session do not feature in the Mosaic Select set (MS-022), which brings together all the material from OKeh, Brunswick & Columbia etc. (all owned by Sony in 2005), as the Brunswick catalogue up to the end of 1931 belongs to Universal Music, whereas from 1932 it belongs to Sony. Sissle was recording popular songs of the time (the Boswell sisters also recorded “Wha’d Ya Do” and “Mississippi” in 1931).

Originally recorded for Victor, now Sony/BMG. The two takes of 73400 are mentioned by most discographers, although all microgroove and CD releases have the same performance of this title; specifically the RCA Tribune
'Complete' Bechet releases (both LP & CD) do not include a #2.

63265-A    When The Sun Sets Down South (Southern Sunset) -1, -2
63266-A    Sweet Patootie (OS vcl) -1, -2

Originally recorded for American Decca. These wonderful recordings are really the first recordings under the leadership/control of Bechet, and a significant indication of his skill as a composer. Presumably Bechet appeared in a small-group setting with the Noble Sissle ‘show’. "Sunset” has been voted all-time favourite Bechet recording by a poll conducted amongst a selection of French musicians.

Originally recorded for American Decca. 63865/72 have never been found (information in R. of a release is incorrect); since "No Good Man" was re-recorded by Smith a few weeks later, probably the original recording was never saved. D. gives "Lady Be Good" as 63872 and does not list "No Good Man"

(380526B) GRANT & WILSON

63873-A Uncle Joe
63874-A I Am A Woman
63875-A Toot It, Brother Armstrong
63876-A Blue Monday On Sugar Hill

Originally recorded for American Decca. 63874 remained unreleased for some 40 years, until it appeared on a Time-Life box set dedicated to Bechet. 63875 also remained unreleased for a similar length of time, except for a few pressings of the original Decca 78 rpm release (De 7500) where it erroneously replaced 63876. Note that Bechet plays clarinet only throughout sessions 680526A & B.

(381105) JAM SESSION FOR B.B.C.

You took Advantage Of Me

Bechet's first extant 'live' recording was a radio broadcast of a concert relayed to the BBC in London (not broadcast in the USA). He is heard only briefly on the second title, not on the other 8 titles from this broadcast, and was not on a subsequent broadcast organised the same way (20 January 1939). The titles are introduced by Alistair Cooke (although he may have lived to regret his exuberant introductions), the “BBC man in New York” and Hugues Panassié (then in New York) is interviewed (partly over the beginning of “China Boy”).

M-925-2 Hold Tight (TF vcl) -2
M-926-1 Jungle Drums -1
M-927-1 Chant In The Night -1

Originally recorded for Vocalion. Bechet's recordings around this time with Morton, Ladnier etc. place him firmly in a 'traditional' style, but this highly interesting session - only the second truly under his own leadership - is quite different and includes the innovative use (for the time) of an amplified guitar, and no 'warhorses'. “Jungle Drums” pitches Bechet against Singleton in what is virtually a duet: Artie Shaw & Benny Goodman.
sometimes used the same idea – for example Shaw’s “Indian Love Call”, recorded July 1938 (and?released before this Bechet session?). Shaw even recorded a title called “Jungle Drums in December 1938.

Recordings from the "Spirituals to Swing" concert, originally released on John Hammond's Vanguard label, except "Panama", which was first released on French Média 7 CD MJCD60. Beware claims of a “Milenberg Joys” form this concert – this title is used erroneously on some CD releases for “Panama”.

(390000) MOON OVER HARLEM
This film (directed by Edgar Ulmer, the ‘Prince of Poverty Row’, and considered a ‘cult’ director these days) about gangsters, love and the variety of people living under the Harlem moon, features Bechet in an acting role; he speaks 2 lines: "The lady made a request for it" and "The man said to play the blues". He is seen playing at a wedding reception, although this is not synchronized with the soundtrack which features him with (per the publicity information) a 60-piece orchestra. The music is only vaguely audible behind the dialogue. Ulmer was a maverick Hollywood director who made this movie with a budget of $8000 (!!) in 4 days (!!), using a black crew and a black - mainly amateur - cast. Apparently Donald Heywood approached Ulmer with a script, and that huge budget..... Although the film may seem dire to us now, it was a first, making a valiant attempt to portray real life in Harlem, using an amateur cast (for extra realism), long before major directors like Rossellini and Foreman would use such a resource. As well as Bechet himself, his wife of the time (Marieluise) also had a small part.

Below are details of audio releases, however the entire film has been issued on VHS (NTSC [i.e. US/Japan] system) twice:
- by Facets Video (Chicago) on ISBN = 1-56580-060-5/UPC = 7-36899-02163-4

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS AND HIS SWING CREW

Sidney Bechet (sop) with unknown band, including strings, and unknown male and female vocalists.

Save Some Of Those Kisses For Me (2 x u/k vcl)

As part of the same film this title is performed on-stage at the Paramount Theatre. Bechet is heard on the soundtrack, but does not form part of the on-screen band (which is only the Columbus band). Some of the performance is obscured by dialogue. An extract was first released on French Média 7 CD MJCD60.

A photograph in the New York Amsterdam News shows members of the 'Crescendo Club' (evidently a social club for black musicians) attending the premiere of this film; those present included Tim Brynn, Jelly Roll Morton and James P. Johnson (in fact several Harlem pianists); the photograph is reproduced in "Dead Man Blues" by Phil Pastras [University of California Press 2001].

GM532-12    Blues For Tommy (Ladnier) -1
GM536-11    Pounding Heart Blues -2

Originally recorded for Blue Note. No additional takes were discovered for inclusion in the Mosaic box set. Most discographers give “Summertime” as #14, however the above is based on research published with the Mosaic box set. Only one performance is known. “Summertime” was a minor hit for Blue Note, very early on the life of that label.

Originally recorded for Baldwin; the above information is based on correspondence from My., who had access to the original Baldwin 'contract sheet'. This is one of the most complex of Bechet's sessions to decipher. The titles and matrix numbers are those from the Baldwin documentation.

Even the band style is open to conjecture: On Baldwin releases, it is just: "Original Haitian Music"; On the Varsity label (most of the above were first released on Varsity), it is "Willie (The Lion) Smith - Sidney Bechet Orchestra (Leo Warney at the drums)". On LP issue on Belfort, it is "Sidney Bechet, Willie The Lion Smith, Leo Warney & his Orchestre" (sic).

In principle, there are 14 tracks, one of which seems never to have been released, although other matrices in the above have been released with the title "Danse Ensemble". There are a number of other names/titles applied to the above matrices, but only 13 different recordings have ever been released. Below (per My.) are the titles as listed on the Baldwin contract sheet:

B 570-1 Meringue des Centraliers
B 571-1 Mayotte
B 572-1 Rose Rumba
B 573-1 Sous Les Palmiers
B-574 Danse Ensemble
B-575-1 Ça Pique à Haiti
B-576-1 Diane
B-577-1 Nana
B-578 Çe Nous Même
B-579 Titte Chatte
B-580 La Belle Germaine
B-581 Ti Ralph
B 582 Meringue D'Amour
B 583 Danses De Chez Nous

A for the music itself, that too is an enigma; Willie "The Lion" Smith said that the session was made because this type of music was popular at the time. There is little or no improvisation anywhere on any of the titles, little variety in the ensemble work, and all of Bechet's 1950's Creole tunes would have a very different flavour from that present on this session. On the other hand, Ernest Borneman (in “The Decca Book Of Jazz” [1958]) said that this session "constitute(s) in my mind the most important event in the entire history of recorded Creole jazz".

(391125) SIDNEY BECHET & HIS NEW ORLEANS FEETWARMERS
Sidney Bechet (sop -1/clt -2/vcl), Sonny White or Don Frye (pno), Stubby Sebastian (bs) or Wilson Myers (bs/vcl), Kenny Clarke (dms/vibes), unknown (vcl).

The two Bechet vocals on the blues are known as "Sidney's Blues" on the Bluebird session of February 5 1940. Originally released on LP by French Vogue Nec Plus Ultra 502001. See 400121 re: pianist and 391230 re: bass/vocal.

*Stardust
*South Of The Border

These two entries were private recordings made by John D. Reid, and undoubtedly used to persuade Victor to bring Bechet under contract. Four titles originally released on LP by French Vogue Nec Plus Ultra 502001 ("Blues", "Indigo" and "Wigwam") and 502013 ("Cabin"). Z. (Média 7 CD MJCD76) suggests Myers as possible vocalist (& therefore bassist) here and on 391125, although John Reid's notes say differently (and he would have known Myers). Information on the unreleased titles from My. & D.

(400121) SIDNEY BECHET & HIS NEW ORLEANS FEETWARMERS
Sidney Bechet (sop -1/clt -2/vcl), Don Frye or Sonny White (pno), Charlie Howard (elec-gtr), Wilson Myers (bs/vcl), Manzie Johnson (dms).

Again, private recordings made by John D. Reid. Frye had co-led a band in 1937 with Frankie Newton (it also included Slim Gaillard and Pete Brown) which cut 12 classic sides in the ‘Harlem Jump’ style, whereas White was a Panamanian, who accompanied Billie Holiday (but did not write the music to “Strange Fruit”). The above session - a ‘rehearsal’ for the Bluebird date two weeks later – was originally released on LP by French Vogue Nec Plus Ultra 502013. Philippe Baudouin (Média 7 CD MJCD76) suggests White here and Frye on 391125, although John Reid's notes say the opposite. See below re: “Indian Summer”.

(400200) SIDNEY BECHET SOPRANO SOLO
Sidney Bechet (sop) Philadelphia, c. February 1940

Ridi Pagliacci (a.k.a. "Vesti la Giubba" & "On With The Motley")

This is a rare find!! It is not the same performance as 400900. First released on French CD Musisoft (formerly Media 7) Masters of Jazz MJCD 178, this distorted "live" recording was unearthed by William C. Love (founder of the International Association of Jazz Record Collectors [IAJRC]); the recording was played on a radio broadcast of the Philadelphia Hot Club, but nothing further is known. The performance ends with applause.

Originally recorded for Bluebird (Victor, now Sony/BMG). M. & Z. list the unissued takes, but these did not figure in the RCA "Jazz Tribune" release of all Bechet's Bluebird/Victor recordings. My. listed unnumbered alternates as issued on French RCA LP 730.593, but this seems unlikely. The beautiful tune “Indian Summer” had been recorded in a hit version by Glenn Miller exactly 3 months earlier.

Originally recorded for HRS (the Hot Record Society). M., T. & Z. all give the unissued 2802-1, and T. & Z. unissued 2803-1 and -2. Unissued 2804-1 from D. Like the Bechet Blue Note recordings, the HRS recordings were collected together and re-issued on the Mosaic label; this company has high standards for researching & producing such re-issues, and they were not able to trace the unissued takes.

The most famous of Bechet's 'pianoless' dates, but - as this discography shows - there were others, and in this respect Bechet was not alone:
- the Delta Four with Roy Eldridge & Joe Marsala had recorded 2 titles for US Decca in 1935
- Joe Marsala had just recorded for General with his Delta Four on 4 April
In both these cases - as here - the group was a mixed one, and the guitarist was Carmen Mastren, who was adept in providing accompaniment in this pianoless setting, but was otherwise fully occupied for several years in the rhythm section of a much larger ensemble: the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra.

(400517) SIDNEY BECHET AND VOCALISTS
Sidney Bechet (sop), unknown male & female vocalists.

Philadelphia May 17 1940

Ain't Misbehavin'

A track from the John D. Reid Archives from The University of Arkansas, first released on French Média 7 CD MJCD 100. Nothing further is known about the vocalists, and the performance is rather 'amateur', with two false starts, one incomplete take, and a lot of laughing.

(400527) LOUIS ARMSTRONG AND HIS ORCHESTRA

67820-A Coal Cart Blues (LA vcl) -1

This (in)famous session was originally recorded for American Decca. Most discographers after M. list unissued alternates: 67817-B, 67818-B, and 67820-B -C and -D. However, the only alternate performance ever to come to light is on 67819. Note that "Coal Cart" is not - as was often thought - a re-creation of a 1925 recording of Bechet & Armstrong with Clarence Williams, since Bechet was not present on that session (October 8 1925).

(400604) SIDNEY BECHET AND HIS NEW ORLEANS FEETWARMERS

051226-1   Make Me A Pallet On The Floor (SB vcl) -1
Originally recorded for Bluebird (Victor, now Sony/BMG). "Wild Man Blues" is a favourite recording and 'signature tune' of the world's most famous Bechet fan: film director, actor, author (etc!) Woody Allen.

(400617) GEORGE BAQUET'S SWINGSTERS
George Baquet (clt), Sidney Bechet (sop), Billy Carter (pno), u/k (gtr), Harold Holmes (bs), Shorty Williams (dms).
Philadelphia, June 17 1940
Blues With Bechet
Originally recorded privately by John D. Reid, and first released on CD on American Music AMCD-44. Bechet is musically respectful to his old mentor; he is not present on other titles recorded by Reid at the same session: "Blues", "Back To Bak" and "Nighthawk Shuffle".

(400699) SIDNEY BECHET
Sidney Bechet (clt/sop/pno).
Philadelphia, June 1940
Time On My Hands
Also from the John D. Reid collection, and first released on French Média 7 CD MJCD 100 (except 1 take as below). His first attempt at a multi-recording does not go well, but provides experience for the more successful 'official' Victor date. There are several breakdowns/false starts, 2 completed soprano-piano 'takes' and a completed one with all 3 instruments (this on MJCD 127). Surprisingly, Bechet picks a title he never recorded otherwise, and there is no extant 'live' performance of it either.

(400728) SIDNEY BECHET & THE CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY OF LOWER BASIN STREET

Two other New Orleans veterans and his good friend Tolliver are present for the recording of the New Orleans traditional slow dance "Egyptia", written by Abe Olman; see 440604 for a real New Orleans old-time clarinet duet on this title, for which Bechet would claim the copyright here and on later recordings of the same theme.

Originally recorded for Victor (now Sony/BMG). All discographers after M. list the different takes of "Sheik", although RCA and Média7 include only one in their 'Complete' releases. Per D., takes #1-#4 all have the 6 instruments, and takes 3 & 4 are "similar". The ? take of "Blues" was first released on French CD Média7 MJCD 127 and contains the first two instruments to be recorded, so the first dubbed take. Studio time ran out, leaving no time to include bass & drums on the "Blues".

Originally recorded for Victor (now Sony/BMG). The last to be made under the Victor contract, as the recording ban, a World War, and rapidly changing musical tastes would intervene. “12th Street Rag” was not released until much later, when Victor needed a quick release to combat Pee Wee Hunt’s hit of the same number. In comparison with the recording sessions of the imminent New Orleans Revival, this is not a bad session for an old New Orleans man: a commercial ragtime number, plus Duke Ellington, Richard Rodgers, George Gershwin and Cole Porter.

Embraceable You
Medley: Georgia Cabin/I Gotta Right to Sing the Blues
Honeysuckle Rose
Bugle Call Rag
Royal Garden Blues
That's A Plenty
Summertime
St. Louis Blues

Details of the band style from a printed hand-out from Allaben Acres (note spelling not Allobon as per some references). Camp Unity was the most overtly communist of the holiday/study camps in the New York area; it welcomed mixed races & sexes (although all the girls were white….). The fairly apolitical Bechet was there in 1941 & 1942, and maybe 1940 as well (see Jazz Journal International August 2002 re: Frankie Newton). These recordings come from the John Reid collection at Arkansas University, originally released on LP by Vogue Nec Plus Ultra 502013 (first 6 titles) and Musisoft (formerly Media 7) Masters of Jazz CD MJCD165 (last two).

(420824B) SIDNEY BECHET
Sidney Bechet (sop/speech).

Camp Unity, New York, August 24-27 1942

Bechet's spoken message to Bunk
Maple Leaf Rag (unaccompanied soprano sax solo)
Baby I'd Love To Steal You (unaccompanied soprano sax solo)
Weary Blues

These items were recorded on a portable machine by Mary E. Karoley, and are also from the John Reid collection at Arkansas University, released on CD by American Music (AMCD-44). The message to Bunk is in reply to the one to Bechet & Armstrong recorded by Bunk on February 2 1942. “Weary Blues” has Bechet playing along with a recording of Bunk's unaccompanied trumpet solo from that date.

The Negro Rhapsody (The Voice of the Slaves)
Diggin' From The Bottom
This Is That Tomorrow That I Dreaded Yesterday

More John Reid recordings; Bechet had written & published his “Negro Rhapsody” in Frankfurt, Germany in 1928. The same material was later used by Bechet in various forms, and also to create the ballet “La Colline du Delta” as recorded by Claude Luter after Bechet's death (see Fabrice Zammarchi’s biography of Claude Luter for a much fuller examination of this subject). Items first released on French Musisoft (formerly Media 7) Masters of Jazz CD MJCD 165.

Haydn's Toy Symphony (part 1)
Haydn's Toy Symphony (part 2)
Haydn's Toy Symphony (part 3)

These & the following Ohio recordings made by John Reid; first release on French Musisoft (formerly Media 7) Masters of Jazz CD MJCD 165.
In fact, the music of the ‘Toy Symphony’, formerly ascribed to Joseph Haydn, is now known to have been part of a longer work by Leopold Mozart (and the addition of the ‘toy’ instruments may have been the work of Joseph’s brother Michael).

(note: the next John Reid recordings to be released (by Musisoft) are several sessions later; some of these recordings are not considered good enough for commercial release)

Multitrack recordings; all information from D. The date may be wrong (it is taken from John Reid’s files) - why would these recordings be made so long after the ‘definitive’ commercial versions? Per D., a more likely date would be June 1940.

VP537  V-Disc Blues (Bugle Call Rag/Ole Miss)
JP332  Bechet Parades The Blues (St. Louis Blues) (SB speak)
*Medley of Parodies: Dear Mom/Tangerine/Nagasaki

These were V-Disc recordings, since the AFM ban on all commercial recordings was still in effect (from August 1, 1942); all the Victor re-issues of JP332 exclude a spoken introduction (of the band members) by Bechet; this was included on UK LP Swinghouse 42 and on French Muzisof [formerly Media 7] Masters of Jazz CD MJCD 178. The producers of the Bechet "Complete Edition" on Masters of Jazz, considered the unreleased performance as permanently lost, but this has now been located by D..

(440600) TALKING RECORDS
Discussions with John D. Reid, Bechet, Manuel Perez, 'Big Eye' Louis Nelson, Alphonse Picou & Willie Santiago. New Orleans, June, 1944. Originally released on compact disc on American Music AMCD-44. Blues
Egyptian Fantasy #1
Egyptian Fantasy #2
Bechet's first New Orleans recordings are on piano! Originally released on American Music CD AMCD-44, the session was organized by John D. Reid; recordings are from the John Reid collection at Arkansas University. Bechet replaces Walter Decou (who plays on other titles from this informal session: "Panama", "Bucket Got A Hole In", "Olympia Rag", "Sister Kate" and "High Society"); apparently he could not yet play clarinet or soprano, following recent dental work carried out by his brother Leonard. “Egyptian Fantasy” is actually “Egyptia”, written by Abe Olman in 1911, and used by George Baquet during his time with Freddie Keppard and the Creole Band; But Bechet doubtless collected the mechanical royalties on his recordings of the tune under the “Fantasy” title.

Bechet with Schroeder, Weiss & Blowers only. Same location & date.

China Boy

Bechet does not play on other items from this broadcast: "Ballin' The Jack", "The Sheik Of Araby", "There's A Small Hotel", "Royal Garden Blues" and "Wherever There's Love".

Bechet's first appearance on Eddie Condon's radio shows, normally referred to as the 'Town Hall Concerts' although many of the later ones were broadcast from the Ritz Theatre. "China Boy" is dedicated to Rod Cless, who had died 8 days earlier. Condon says "it's good to have Sidney back", but, as far as is known, this is his first appearance! These were not 'AFRS broadcasts', although many of the broadcasts were transcribed by the American Forces Radio Service and the resulting discs distributed through their network. Following discographer Bozy White's method, the 'jam session' number which normally closed the broadcast is referred to always as "Impromptu Ensemble", although some items have been released with alternative titles, as above. All the extant 'Town Hall Concert' performances have been released on CD by Jazzology.

Basin Street Blues (incomplete) -1

One of only two Bechet recordings in New Orleans (see also 440624), this concert was recorded off the air as part of the "Second Esquire Jazz Concert" and relayed nationally; other parts of the concert were performed in New York and Los Angeles. "Southland" is a feature for J.C. Higginbotham, not for Bechet, or even Armstrong. "Basin Street" is incomplete on all releases, since the New Orleans part of the concert was faded out during this number. The Tom Lord CD-ROM Discography lists a US LP (Sunbeam SB219) which contains the above released items, plus a “Perdido St. Blues” with Bechet on clarinet - this is incorrect, the announcer (Glenn Riggs) mistakenly introduces “Back O’Town” as “Perdido”. Details of the unreleased items from D (presumably “Egyptian Fantasy” would have been a Bechet feature).

I Know That You Know -1

This is the first recording from Bechet's stint at the Savoy Café; all the known recordings (*) made in Boston were released on LP on the American Fat Cat Jazz label in the 1980's; the fact that some titles are incomplete is no criticism of the diligent work undertaken by Jack Towers and the Fat Cat company to restore complete tracks from damaged or broken discs, often from a variety of sources.

* = Rn. notes a 22 March broadcast, possibly not recorded; well the residency started on 12 March, and there may have been a broadcast on 22, but this doesn't seem grounds for making an entry in a discography.

The Fat Cat release of this date (FCJ 001) conjectures that the shortage of recordings surviving from this date may have been caused by a power failure at the Savoy Café.

Having played clarinet all the afternoon for the long rehearsal session, Bechet switches to soprano for most of the evening broadcast! John Reid preferred Bechet's clarinet, and it was certainly less intimidating for Bunk Johnson than the Bechet soprano which Bunk referred to as a ‘fish horn’.

The first of the Boston sessions on which Bechet plays only soprano.

(note: M. gives an entry [F15] for an Eddie Condon broadcast on 28 April, featuring 2 Bechet items: "Ensemble Blues" and "Walkin' The Dog". This is an error, based on the AFRS release of what was in fact a 'dub show': items from earlier Condon broadcasts were assembled for the AFRS as if they were from one integral session. "Ensemble Blues" is from 450224, and "Walkin' the Dog" from 441230, but in fact Bechet does not play on the latter anyway).

   Trouble In Mind -2
   Perdido Street Stomp -1

This was a special recording made privately by Sidney as a personal gift to Wynne Paris. It is worth noting that "Perdido Street Stomp" was actually the band's opening & closing theme for regular performances at the Savoy. The blues theme often mentioned above was used specifically for the broadcasts.

(note: Rn. mentions 2 titles (‘Ory’s Creole Trombone’ and one unknown) as released on Transark 1000 (see 450424), which he ‘relates to’ the Boston sessions. These are not on the Transark LP; there is no trace of Bechet ever recording ‘Ory’s Creole Trombone’)

KJ42-3 *Groovin' The Minor -1

Originally recorded for King Jazz. This session is dated September 1947 by M., T. & Z., and there is some confusion, but I go with the dates used by Storyville, who had access to more information than others regarding the King Jazz sessions.

KJ42-3 is mentioned by M., T. & D., but is not mentioned on the releases of King Jazz material by the Danish Storyville company or the Italian King Jazz Company. The former clearly had access to the files of the (US) King Jazz company, and to Mezzrow himself, so the existence of the third take as an original master must be in doubt.

*After You've Gone

Concert organised by Bob Maltz (who also acts as M.C.) as a tribute to Parenti, Dodds & Edwards. The two issued titles were released with a book: “Clarinet Marmalade – The Life & Music of Tony Parenti” by Derek Coller, published by the Jazzology Press (CD-9). Bechet is not featured on other titles from this concert: “Original Dixieland One-Step”, “Fidgety Feet”, “Grace & Beauty” & “Clarinet Marmalade”. Bechet is heavily featured on the “Blues” track, and indeed does play clarinet on “Dippermouth”.

E Flat Blues (incomplete) (Harris out)
Concert organised by Paul Eduard Miller, and probably recorded by John Steiner. Originally released on LP on the US Big Chief Jerollomo label (catalogue number SBBH 1947!!), and subsequently on Austrian CD RST Records 91.753 (with the credit: 'licensed from the Fletcher Henderson Fund’) in 2002. In both cases, the recording appears to have been slowed up (or was recorded “fast”). “B Flat” is listed as “E Flat” on the RST release. Bechet does not play on the Bill Harris features: “Mean To Me” and “I Surrender Dear” from this date. T. gives "Embraceable You/Laura" as unreleased, presumably because it is not mentioned on the LP label or sleeve (the back of the sleeve - where one might expect to find some notes - is entirely blank!); similarly Rn. says “Blues in B flat” is possibly not on the LP, but both titles are definitely present.

Way Down Yonder In New Orleans (theme out)

First appearance of Bechet on Rudi Blesh's historic "This is Jazz" radio broadcasts. "Charleston" as issued on the US Riverside label (RLP 149) and subsequently by other US labels includes an ad lib introduction by its composer (JPJ); European releases (including on the Fontana label) do not have the introduction; on the other hand they have a 32-bar solo by Foster (with JPJ) which is not on some US releases! Bechet does not play on the JPJ solo: "Caprice Rag" from this broadcast.

Farewell Blues
Way Down Yonder In New Orleans (theme out)

Bechet does not play on "Twelfth Street Rag" and "Buddy Bolden Blues" from this session. The theme in/out is "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans". Note the date, a Monday: all the "This is Jazz" broadcasts were made on Saturday afternoons, except this one and the March 31 one. Previous discographies give 22nd. Rudi Blesh announces "You're Some Pretty Doll", but Brunis’ vocal is his ‘comic’ version.

Kansas City Man Blues
Polka Dot Rag (Stomp)

Bechet and Wilber appeared as 'guests' on this broadcast; neither plays on all the other items from the broadcast: "Theme in", "Maple Leaf Rag", "Basin Street Blues", "Jazz Me Blues", "Carolina Shout", "Panama" and "Theme out". Both M. & T. list a third Bechet-Wilber title: "Spreadin' Joy", which T. gives as released on the After Hours label; however, this track is audibly "Polka Dot", Jazzology released the full broadcast on CD, and the performance is definitely "Polka Dot" – there is no time for a further title (although this would not rule out a recording of this title from elsewhere, and of course Bechet and Wilber recorded all three titles for Columbia later in the year [see 470714]). Oddly, "Kansas City" is played here in the key of C (concert), whereas for the Columbia studio version the key shifts to E flat (concert).

Wild Cat Blues
Bechet does not play on "Crazy 'Bout My Baby", "Squeeze Me", "Chocolate Bar" or "I've Got A Feeling I'm Falling from this broadcast, dedicated to the compositions of Fats Waller (who of course wrote "Wild Cat", although he never recorded as a disc or even a piano roll), nor on the opening & closing themes ("Way Down Yonder In New Orleans"). Both M. & T. give George Brunis vocal on "Blue Turning Grey", but this is not so (he does sing on "Crazy 'Bout My Baby"). Both also gave 19 April as the date for "Wild Cat", but the above is correct.

Per Li., Jimmy Crawford never appeared on the ECFS, and lists no broadcast with both Page and Kaminsky. However, D. has an acetate of "Black & Blue" and lists the 24th.

Medley: Muskrat Ramble
  Birth Of The Blues
  Louisiana
  New Orleans
  High Society

Bechet might not be present on all unissued titles. The medley is released on Italian LP Queendisc Q 031; Bechet actually performs on "Muskrat" and "High Society". The (+) titles are not listed by Li., for whom this is the first show featuring Bechet. However, Li. does include a "But Not For Me" later (see 490416). D. lists Bechet as present on: "Way Down Yonder" & "Jam Session". Bechet must have brought the very young (hence Condon's reference to 'permission from their mothers' in his intro) Wilber band to the show. "New Baby" is only listed by Rn.

(490305B) HERALD TRIBUNE FRESH AIR FUND CONCERT

New York March 5 1949

*Ad Lib Blues
*Dear Old Southland
*I've Found A New Baby

M. lists these recordings under references F22, F30 & F31, duplicating the blues title. This broadcast included a “battle of the bands”, but there is no indication that Bechet plays together with Charlie Parker, who were doing battle in the bop band, on the above – or any other - titles. Some discographies give Sidney de Paris on trumpet instead of his brother, and Walter Page instead of Traeger; however D.has acetates of these performances, and gives the above.

Rn. lists an “Ol’ Man River” and “I Know” on 490312. According to D., "I Know That You Know" as released on Jazum 77 (identified there as 'VOA Transcription no. 85') is from the above date and not 'c.1950/51 as claimed on the Jazum sleeve.

These May 1949 concerts are very difficult to sort out! The Vogue 'Integrale' edition (3LP set COF-21) admits that it does not include all the recordings available from Bechet's dates at the Paris Jazz Festival (these are recorded off radio broadcasts rather than live at the concerts, and some releases could be drawn from different broadcasts of the same performances). All released titles from 8-15 May and 2 titles from October with Braslavsky were however included on COF-21, with the exception of those marked +, which appeared only on Swedish LP Phontastic NOST 7602 (which also included some titles as in COF-21). Details of the unreleased titles from Rn., Z. and/or D.(also the specification of the dates and splitting up of tracks between 8, 10, 12, 13 & 15 May as used here).

The same performance of “Jelly Roll” is included twice on COF-21! The first time is as one of the titles from the Paris Jazz Festival as here, where it is missing the first 20-odd bars, and fades out during the last 16; the second is described as from October 1949 (see 49100 2), and is more complete, including more of the first chorus (behind the radio announcer) and the complete ending. The Phontastic release of this title is the same as this ‘second version’.

*Tin Roof Blues
*Sister Kate
*Black Bottom

Bechet’s first performance with France’s most successful band of the time in the ‘traditional’ style, and with whom he would enjoy so much success. Luter would remain at the forefront of this style for a further 57 years. And in 2011, Christian Azzi was still leading a band with Poumy Arnaud (who also played with Bechet) and Olivier (son of René – see below – and playing Bechet’s own soprano): Sidney Bechet Memory. And here’s a piece of trivia: Mowgli Jospin was the half-brother of former French Prime Minister Lionel Jospin.

*American Rhythm
Tin Roof Blues
Blues In The Air
Southern Sunset
Careless Love
Wild Cat Blues
St. Louis Blues
*Weary Blues (incomplete)
*High Society (incomplete)

Originally released on Vogue. Details of the unreleased tracks from Z. and/or D. Z. claims "Blues in the Air" to be incomplete, but this is not so: there is only one released version of "Blues in The Air" from Paris (another from Geneva - see 490514), but it has been edited differently on the COF-21 and Phontastic releases: COF-21 has a complete beginning, but the final Bechet chorus has been edited, and replaced by the last chorus from the same number at Geneva (below)! This might have been done to include a rather theatrical ‘long-note’ from Bechet. The Phontastic release contains the original final chorus, but unfortunately is missing the first 12-bar theme, and begins part-way through the second (minor key) theme. So actually there is no release which contains the entire performance.

As for “St Louis Blues”, the beginning of this (the Habanera rhythm) is mostly lost behind the radio announcer on both the COF-01 and Phontastic issues. On German LP After Hours AH 1201, the same performance is included, but was recorded from a different radio station, because the announcement (in both French and English) blots out more of the opening theme.

The details for all the recordings with Braslavsky are taken from their release on Vogue COF 21 (The "Integrale" release, first 3-LP set). M. gives other details, but this could well have arisen from duplication, since none of the titles he mentions is not listed as coming from either Salle Pleyel or Victoria Hall. There seem to be fewer question marks about this particular date.......

Interestingly, the initial release of the Geneva material was on a catalogue number "SB 3", which does not carry the Vogue label/trademark, but appears to be on the "S.B." label; another release "SB 2" carries the label "Collection Sidney Bechet", and is only marked as "distributed" by Vogue.

*I'm Crazy 'Bout My Baby
Honeysuckle Rose
Black & Blue
*Jam Session

Hot foot from Paris, Bechet is back on Condon’s TV show; he is not present on a “Fats Waller Medley” and “Ain’t Misbehavin” from this broadcast. Note: ”Black & Blue” (see also 490326) is May 21 and not March 21 as per Queendisc Q-029. Details of “Jam” from T. & Z., but not listed by Li Nor BY Rn. D. does not include "Crazy".

(note: Li. lists Bechet on an ECFS from 23 or 28 May, however this cannot be confirmed, and is not listed by D.)

Originally produced by Rudi Blesh for Circle Records. The same Wilber band had already cut 6 sides under Blesh’s direction for Circle a few weeks earlier. This was the band Wilber took to the Savoy Café in Boston, where they had been resident since the previous autumn. Anderson was a Trinidadian calypso singer.

Bechet is not present on other titles from this session: “All Of Me”, “Alone With The Blues”, "Blues
Intro/Riverboat Shuffle", "Hotter Than That" and “Why Can’t You Behave” from this broadcast. "Jam Session" is issued only on German CD Delta CD24039 (incomplete recording). Rn. gives Count Basie on piano for “Blues In My Heart”, but this is not so.

I Know That You Know

This was part of an Eddie Condon show to celebrate its first anniversary. Guests were invited back to perform titles from previous shows, hence Bechet plays the above, as he had done on 19 March. He is not present on all other titles from this broadcast: “One Hour”, “Mandy”, “I Love A Piano”, “Soft Lights & Sweet Music”, “I Want A Little Girl”, “The Man I Love”, “I Got Rhythm”, “Keeps On A-Rainin”, “Lover Man”, “We Called It Music”, “Someday”, “The Three Bears”, “Chinatown” and on either commercially released version of “Jam Session” (Saga 6916 & FDC 1014), both of which are incomplete and fade out. Hence Bechet probably does not play with Billie Holiday, Louis Armstrong or Jack Teagarden, who were all on the same show.

Back in Paris. Details of the unreleased tracks from T., Z., but mostly from D. A "Jelly Roll" and a "St. Louis Blues" identified on Vogue COF-01 and an obscure German LP (After Hours AH 1201) as from this concert are actually from Bechet's May visit to Paris. This mistake is spotted by all later discographers, except Ri.

D. gives the most precise date of all the discographers; the first 4 titles are clear, and were released on early Vogue 78 r.p.m. discs. "Ni Queue" appears in more than one form, and is released in error for other known recordings (appearing 3 different times on the Vogue Integrale edition, on COF-21, 22 and 24!). According to D., the performance is actually "Blues in the Cave", however the recording is incomplete (missing a beginning and end hence, its title ["No Tail, No Head"], and missing the solos by the other musicians), although it was issued at the time on 78rpm V5089. Details of the unreleased items from D., who also gives a possible "Apple Blues" from this date (but see 491115).

First issued on CD on Landscape LS2-901 with other Swiss recordings (see 540322), although this release gives the year as 1951. Location and date from this release; however, over the editions of his work, D. changes the possible dates and venues; the above titles may be from various dates in October 1949, and from dates in Switzerland - Lausanne as above, The Kongresshaus Zurich (7 October) or the Salle de la Réformation Geneva (also 8 October) – or France: The Opéra Lyon (10 October) or an un-named venue in Roubaix (13 October).

The above 2 recordings exist, no question. However, another recording has been issued under this title on Vogue (F) CLVLX 672, Scepter SPM 537 and Vogue (F) DP 11; this is none other than our old friend “Ni Queue, Ni Tête” (matrix V3083: see 491003)! Double LP CLVLX 672 is even titled “Blues In Paris”, but it’s a pity Vogue could not have used the correct recording!

V3022-1 Panther Dance (am)
V3022-2 Panther Dance (mt)

Bechet's first studio session for Vogue, to whom he would be under contract for the rest of his life; the session contains his biggest hit. The matrix numbering used for Vogue releases is taken from Ri., since his discography is specific to the Vogue label. Original date of 14 October for all titles now revised by Vogue to 14 & 15 as above on CD release 600026, but not consistently so elsewhere! And Ri. lists everything as 14th. Z2. gives Philippe on trumpet for 3015 & 3018 only; D. Gives Philippe on banjo for 3015, 3016 & 3017 only.

“Ridin Easy Blues” (actually “See See Rider”) is definitely released, but for many years only on its first issue - Vogue V 5015 (78 r.p.m.) - and maybe some early LP’s. At some early date, matrix number V3083 (see 491003) seems to have been linked to the title “Ridin’ Easy Blues”, so that all versions of that title on 12” 33 r.p.m. LP’s (including the Integrale Box COF-22), and even on CD (notably the CD set “Integrale Studio”) all use matrix 3083! Even the otherwise excellent Classics CD series from France failed to release the correct performance - at least on the first pressing run (Classics 1186). It is not possible to confirm any release of matrix V3020 on any album from the 1950's until 2001, when Jazz Kings CD album 7243 8508522 finally featured the 'original' "Ridin' Easy Blues".

"Panther Dance" is none other than "Tiger Rag". However, Rn. & Ri. disagree over which take is which, juxtaposing all release information. Since Vogue themselves indicate that the master - and most used - take is #2, in agreement with Ruppli, I’ve gone for that.

Originally recorded for Vogue. “Riverboat” is sometimes released as “Le Bateau Fluvial”. In D's opinion, V4390 must date either from here or a 1949 concert date, since it was released on V5168 much earlier than the 1952 date often allocated to it (although I think the recording quality is too good for an early concert); also "Apple" could be an alternative take of "Sawmill Blues", because Bechet's solos are quite similar.

All these tracks - aside from surely not all being recorded on one night as is always stated on releases - present several problems. All were released by Vogue on their "Integrale" edition of LP boxes (COF 22,23 & 24), except for "The Mooche", which was released on a US LP: Jazz Archives JA-37. Before Vogue issued their "Integrale" edition, they released all the tracks except those marked + on three LP's (CLD 740, CLD 776 and LDM 30188). For these, they dubbed 'extra' instruments: Yannick Singery (pno) and Georges "Zozo" d'Halluin (bs) over the sound of Kenny Kersey's 'barely audible' piano on the original tape. Details of the unissued items from D. The “Integrale” edition reverted to the original recordings without the overdubbing.

Originally recorded for Vogue; these 2 sessions are given as 9 October by M. and either 6 or 9 October by Vogue (depending which release you’re looking at!); Rn. & Ri. also split the titles between the two dates. Bechet's last studio date on clarinet. There are 2 released takes of "Francis", but inexplicably only one (the alternate) was included on the "Integrale" edition (COF-24), without a take number. Details of the 2 unreleased takes of 3100 from Vogue themselves in the notes to their "Integrale" Edition, without explanation as to why these takes were not included. Rn. says no trombone on “Lastic” but I can hear him.

51V4052 Blues In The Cave (SB sop,speech & pno + band)

Originally recorded for Vogue. Note the different style of matrix number used by Vogue from 1951, per Rn. & Ri. "Egyptian Fantasy" is really an old New Orleans number "Egyptia", which Bechet claimed as his own composition; it is also a clarinet number, but here Bechet plays soprano (all his prior recordings/performances are on clarinet), allocating the initial breaks to Luter's clarinet, but in the second chorus, taking them himself on soprano.

Originally recorded for Vogue. Some issues just as 'et son Orchestre' rather than the above more evocative band style. Bechet & Luter appear as 'featured artists' with Réweliotty; Luter & Réweliotty would also make some titles together (May 1952), and Luter's star was on the rise: he recorded with Mezzrow in October 1951. Albert Nicholas & Luter recorded with Réweliotty & his band in November 1953. Sidney's wedding day was 3 weeks earlier (17 August) in Antibes.

(520100) SIDNEY BECHET AND HIS ORCHESTRA
Sidney Bechet (sop), rest unknown.

Dirty Dragon Blues
Shim-Me-Sha-Wabble

Date/location unknown
This is entry E25 in M., purportedly issued on the Jazz Society label AA508. Other discographers follow him, but release of this record has never been confirmed. D. dropped this session from the third edition of his work. ‘Jazz Society’ was a French label (used by Vogue), not to be confused with a Swedish label of the same name; and to confuse matters totally, there is an album release AA508 on the Swedish label, featuring Benny Goodman (although this was released in the 1970's, after Mauerer had initially documented the above “release”)! The French Jazz Society label, especially in the AA500 range of numbers seems to have been used for 78 rpm re-issues of US recordings; Bechet only made one studio recording of “Shim-me-sha-wabble” - for Blue Note (see 500419) - but it is going too far to suggest that the above might actually be that recording.

52V4205-? Marchand De Poissons (mt)
52V4206-1 As-Tu Le Cafard
52V4207-1 Dans Les Rues d'Antibes

Originally recorded for Vogue, the tracks from this session are among the most popular from his French period, and have been re-released many times. Inexplicably, only one take each of 4204 & 4205 - the alternates - were included in the Vogue "Integrale" edition (COF-25). Neither Rn. nor Ri. gives these alternates, nor any take numbers. "Pattes De Mouche" is also known as "Mouche à Miel" & "The Count of Monte Bechet" (!!). "Cafard" is usually released in an edited version without the original trumpet introduction (probably due to an uncharacteristic mistake by Longnon), which is however present on the earliest releases.

(520121) SIDNEY BECHET ALL-STARS
Guy Longnon (tpt), Bernard Zacharias or Jean-Louis Durand (tbn), Sidney Bechet (sop), Charlie Lewis (pno), Alf Masselier (bs), Armand Molinetti (dms), James Campbell (vcl).

Paris January 21 1952

52V4181-1  You're Lucky To Me (mt)
52V4181-2  You're Lucky To Me (am)

Originally recorded for Vogue. According to their "Integrale" edition, 4178 is an extract from the ballet "La Nuit Porte Conseil", which must have been an early title for what would eventually become "La Nuit est Une Sorcière". Above take numbers are from the Integrale box sets (COF 25 & 26); Ri. gives some conflicting information; original release of 4175 has no take number, alternate is take -?. Original releases of 4180 & 4181 have no take number, alternates are -1.
Campbell does not sing the lyrics to “Magic”, rather he makes an ecstatic declamation at the beginning and end of the title.
“Petite Fleur” has of course been re-issued many times (although the serial re-compilers at Vogue usually prefer the 1954 concert version – see 541208), and it is impossible to say which take of it has been used on all those re-issues, but in 2006 the French Classics company inexplicably released an alternate of this very popular title with a different band arrangement, possibly for the first time!
And if Louis can have a band of ‘All-Stars’, then Sidney can too.

M. lists "High Society" as belonging to this concert, however the "Integrale" edition and subsequent CD issues list this as a January 31 track. Those items marked + are listed in the "Integrale" edition as 'first take/version', but no explanation is offered (maybe there were two concerts with similar material?). "Baby", "Rhythm" and "Barbecue" were issued as singles by Vogue, with the performance split into two tracks (i.e. two sides of the original release).

Originally recorded by Vogue. 4327-A was due to be released on Vogue's "Integrale" edition COF-28, but this was never released. All the other alternate takes have been released in some format or another. Per M., matrix 4605 is "Lazy River" and "Baby's Prayer" combined; per Vogue release 500093, which includes the entire session except the unreleased 4327-A, 4605 = "Stars Fell On Alabama" and "Lazy River" combined. Per Raben, 4604 is the combined "Alabama"/"Lazy River", and 4605 is the master take of "Baby's Prayer". Per Ri., 4604 is "Alabama", but 4605 is both "Prayer" and "Lazy River".............. etc. etc. Note that there is indeed a 'medley' consisting of "Alabama" & "Lazy River" which contains a different performance from the stand-alone "Lazy River" title.

Paris 1952

* Buddy Bolden Stomp

* D. gives the date for this recording as somewhere around November 1952 – January 1953. It is from the soundtrack of the film "La Route du Bonheur", and has not been released on any audio-only format, although the entire film has been released on (SECAM) VHS in the retrospective French cinema series René Château (catalogue number 330240 032361), and now on DVD in the same series. The film had its première on 4 September 1953; it is little more than a series of musical cameos around the flimsiest of story lines, but the musical features include - in addition to Bechet - Louis Armstrong & the All-Stars (? borrowed perhaps from a US feature film?), Aimé Barelli, Hubert Rostaing and a short - but fascinating - scene showing the unique left-hand fingerwork of Django Reinhardt.

(530000) SIDNEY BECHET
Sidney Bechet (pno & talk) with André Coffrant (talk). Also Charlie Lewis (pno – see below)
Paris 1953

Themes from "La Nuit est une Sorcière"

There are both English- (from the Delaunay archives) and French-speaking (Vogue) versions of this short exposé of ballet themes by SB in conversation with Coffrant. Dates of both unknown, but surely not May 18 1953 (same day as the orchestral recording), as given by Vogue and most discographers, since Bechet gives a demonstration of the themes to Coffrant, apparently before James Tolliver has made the arrangements. D. also gives a ‘private recording’ of unknown date with Bechet & Coffrant speaking, and Bechet and Charlie Lewis playing the themes on piano.

53V4600 Brave Margot

Originally recorded for Vogue. Matrices 4597/8 are allocated to a Dizzy Gillespie session (9 Feb 1953). “Jacqueline” is also known as “Nous Deux”. Some discographers suggest that Longnon plays valve-trombone, replacing Durand, but I go for the above personnel. This is Bechet’s first studio session with Réweliotty as his official backing band. There is a less ‘jazzy’ feel now: a Django Reinhardt composition, but also other French popular songs, including two from Georges Brassens. Jacqueline was the mother of Daniel Bechet; however, “Elisabeth” is – it is said - not named for Bechet’s wife (Elisabeth Ziegler), but for the new Queen of England!
Details of the unreleased title (which has however been broadcast) from D.

Originally released on LP by Fat Cat Jazz in the U.S.A. (FCJ 016) and by Vogue in Europe in their Nec Plus Ultra series (502012). The US release includes an interview with Bechet conducted in French between sets of this concert, and reproduced in Jean-Roland Hippenmeyer’s book on Bechet (Tribune Editions Geneva 1980), whereas the equivalent French Vogue release does not! Bechet appeared often with the Attenoux band in concert, but never made a studio recording with them. Guy Longnon – the best of the French trumpeters - had been with Luter, and would soon join Réweliotty.

Originally recorded for Vogue. Rn. & Ri. say no Bechet on “American Rhythm”, but this is crazy, since this is the theme he habitually used to make his theatrical entrance on to the stage. Information about the unreleased tracks from T & Rn. The matrix numbers above are expressed thus (in parentheses) by Ri., but without explanation. Z. & D. give ”Les Oignons” and “A Moi d’Payer” (as released on Vogue LP’s COF.01 and SB

Paris January-March 1955

*Montmartre Boogie Woogie
*Trottoirs de Paris
*A Moi d'Payer
*A Moi d'Payer (A Toi d'Payer)(MvV vcl)
*Blues dans le Blues

These are the soundtrack recordings for the film "Série Noire", not released in any audio-only format, but only on VHS as part of the (SECAM) video of the film (although some extracts of 3 titles [excluding "Montmartre"] have been issued on a Canadian VHS) on the retrospective French cinema label 'René Château' (catalogue number 330240 032958); not released so far on DVD. Bechet plays 'Sidney' (i.e. himself), but only appears on screen - resplendent in his white jacket - in the night club scene which includes the vocal version of "A Moi d'Payer". Ms. van Vooren actually sings "A Toi de Payer", which in this context means 'your turn to pay' (the penalty, the price - not a round of drinks!) in F minor (concert), and this is the title which appears in the credits (lyrics by André Coffrant of "La Nuit est Une Sorcière" fame). Bechet's instrumental version ("my turn to pay") as used on the soundtrack is in B-flat minor. In English, this title has a good gangster connection: "The Pay-Off". The film is typical French gangland fare, full of cigarette smoking, gangsters and their molls, flick knives and machine guns, and corpses galore! In the night club scene, Bechet & the band accompany Ms. van Vooren, then the customers dance to the major key theme of "A Moi/Toi", and to "Trottoirs". The above music is frequently used as background, and also as a radio broadcast. "Blues" is used as background music to a scene in a a bar (although Bechet & the band are not seen), and to a more 'romantic' scene. "Trottoirs" is used against street scenes of Paris, and "Boogie" against a car chase. In a further sequence, "A Moi/Toi" is played in a whisper on celeste. The toughest gangster turns out at the end to be a 'flic' (a policeman). The closing sequences have Réweliotty playing the major key theme from "A Moi/Toi", although the closing titles revert to Bechet's interpretation of the minor key theme.

Originally released on Vogue. Only one performance of "Basin Street" is known; however, it has been edited differently on some releases. “A Moi d’ Payer” and “Les Oignons” are either from this date or 541208. Bechet had made the studio recording of “A Moi” only the month before with Réweliotty (see 550208); besides, he was no longer playing regularly with the Luter band, who might not have known the tune. So maybe the above is more likely, at least for “A Moi”. Note that there is no “As-Tu Le Cafard” nor “Petite Fleur” from here, despite details on some releases; the concert versions of these titles are from 541208.

Soundtrack recordings from the film: "L’Inspecteur connaît la Musique" (also simply called ‘Blues’), rather than the Vogue recordings made in December 1955 (see 551205), unreleased commercially (in any audio or video format). Some titles are better known with alternatives: "Les Hommes" as “Temperamental”, "L’Enchaînée" as "Old Stack O’Lee Blues", and "Le Blues De Mes Rêves" as "Orphan Annie’s Blues". Luter also wrote music for the film and appeared in it (and his character kills Bechet’s!!). I cannot trace that any video of this film has ever been released, although – for what it’s worth - reprints of the promotional poster are freely in circulation.

55V5298 I Had It But It's All Gone Now - Pt 2

Music from the film: "L'Inspecteur Connaît La Musique" (also called ‘Blues’), originally recorded for Vogue. The two titles on 5295 are also known as “Temperamental” and “Old Stack O’Lee Blues’ respectively, and 5296 as “Orphan Annie’s Blues”. This is the film in which Luter kills Bechet; and the Frenchman also contributed music to the film.

Originally recorded for Vogue. 5433 also known under its French title: “Quand arrive le Samedi Soir”. There is no trace of 5434, even in Ri. Réweliotty is not present, even though it's his band. Some issues give "Song D'Automne", but it's a dream, not a song. René Franc was with Braslavsky on the 1949 recordings, and is the father of Olivier Franc, currently playing Bechet’s soprano in the Bechet style.

Sidney Bechet (sop), Lionel Hampton (pno) plus Claude Luter band (personnel not certain).

Vieux Colombier Paris, 19 January 1956

St. Louis Blues (incomplete)

Radio broadcast from the Vieux Colombier in Paris. Bechet is interviewed in French & English, Hampton in English and Jeanine Senneville (who ran the Vieux Colombier) in French, with the Luter band (this was the club’s “house band” at the time) in the background, then “St Louis Blues” is played with Bechet & Hampton (on piano), who were due to perform that evening at the club. This item has not been released on a commercial disc (it is really a news/current affairs item), but is available as a download from the INA (the French Institut National de l’Audiovisuel, which has released some Bechet archive recordings either only as downloads or as both download and on commercial CD). The extract is incomplete and stops abruptly.

V6022-2 Passport To Paradise (am)
V6023 Coquin De Boubou
V6024 Haou Haou Cou Cou
V6025 Chacun A Sa Chance
V6026 Shake 'Em Up

Originally recorded for Vogue, who have reverted to their original style of matrix numbering. V6022 sometimes spelled "Passeport To Paradise" or "Passeport au Paradis", but it is really an English title (and recorded by others - e.g. Luter - with the English spelling). Ri. gives an additional (!) matrix number for 6022-1: (V8787). The spelling of V6024 is taken from it's original release on LD 307, because neither M. nor T. agrees with that. 6023 also known as “The Cotton Ball”. M. apparently reversed the matrix numbers for “Shake ’Em Up” and “Chacun”, as T., Rn. & Ri. all have the above.

Moreover, M. gives Yannick Singéry for Bernard on 26 February, & Ri. gives Singéry throughout. Details of the unreleased title from Rn./Ri. "J'en Ai Marre" better known as: "Moi, J'En Ai Marre".

During spring 1957, Bechet was interviewed on several occasions on the radio on Europe 1 (produced by Yves Salgues, Daniel Filipacchi & Frank Ténot); extracts from these broadcasts were released initially on a double LP "L'Histoire de Sidney Bechet" (Vogue CSB 2, which included inter alia unreleased takes from his Vogue sessions, later released on CD with the same content: 8697526292). These broadcasts were heavily used by Raymond Mouly to create his book on Bechet "Sidney Bechet - Notre Ami" (1959).

580516 (TV broadcast: “St. Louis Blues” & “Premier Bal” with Bolling)
580710 Cannes festival: “Sweet Georgia Brown” & “American Rhythm”/”I’ve Found A New Baby”

There are also some very short extracts from Eddie Condon TV shows. It is also possible that material is available on video-sharing sites such as “YouTube”. There are many instances of Bechet audio being synchronised with non-Bechet video, but the only way to be sure that nothing is missing from the above list is to perform an almost infinite search of YouTube (or similar sites) every day........

In addition, there have been several documentaries on Bechet, some of which draw on other video: Bechet home movies, footage of his wedding on 17 August 1951 (which was in fact released commercially as a short film: “Symphonie Sous Le Ciel”), a silent film made by Bernard Wagnière in Switzerland (1953), and other non-musical video, as well as the above video performances. One of these documentaries has been released commercially: “Treat It Gentle”, a Joe Lustig/Tracebridge production for NVC Arts & the BBC (it was shown on the BBC in Bechet’s centennial year), and issued by Warner Music Vision as 5-51011-8860-2-7 in 2007.
